WE WERE WARNED - WHY DIDN'T WE DEFEND OUR FREEDOM IN 1984?

George Orwell's novel, 1984, is a chilling description of the horrors of totalitarianism. As we enter 1984 it is time to rededicate ourselves to the ideals of freedom and democracy which are under attack. In particular let us keep alive national freedom which is in danger of being extinguished by those cosmopolitan forces which Orwell so despised.

The world of Orwell's 1984 is one where "Big Brother is watching you". It is one where disagreement with the official line is regarded as thought-crime, to be rooted out by the state thought-police. When we think of the enthusiasm with which national values are suppressed today – by the banning of "racist" children's books from libraries, by the political control of school curriculums, by restrictions on freedom of speech, by the exclusion of "incorrect views" from the mass media, even the banning of Christian school assemblies – we can see that the world of 1984 casts a shadow over our contemporary life.

Some of our most precious freedoms – the freedom to retain our national identity and national independence and freedom of speech – are denied to us. The power to determine our own affairs and live according to our own customs, with our own people is being taken out of our hands. Real power is being transferred to huge super-national institutions such as the Common Market (now the EU), the International Monetary Fund and the giant multi-national companies. Ordinary people have a feeling of powerlessness, a feeling that their destinies lie in the hands of small remote groups over whom they have no control. Why cannot the public see, that by accepting a party system of voting, they are putting us under the control of an impenetrable political elite that does not represent them.

George Orwell's hero in the book 1984 confronted with the "Big Brother" state, declared that "If there is hope it lies with the proles." It was a declaration of faith in the ordinary working people. If national freedom is to be preserved then it is the ordinary people who must take back responsibility from the small groups of faceless men. They must declare that they will not tolerate the creation of a "thought-crime" to shackle and intimidate those who embrace national ideals and traditional values. With your help we can keep alive the flame of national freedom, regaining our strength and our faith in ourselves as a nation until that happy time when power is taken back from the Big Brothers of this world. You cannot expect help from any MP, MEP or councillor – they had to sell us out to gain their "politically correct" position. We have to make our own break to freedom.

No one allows criminals to be their own judge or place themselves above the law. Yet we have allowed politically active, Zionist Jews to do just this by introducing the law of "anti-Semitism". One may ask how these separatist people, who claim to be a victimised minority managed to have sufficient control over our government to have this monstrous piece of legislation introduced into law. The majority of Semites in the world are Arabs and not one of them has complained of anti-Semitism. Yet the majority of those claiming to be Jews are not Semites but members of the Ashkenazi tribe.
